OSHKOSH BEATS US ELEVEN TO NOTHING.

The Oshkosh high school football team played the locals in this city on Saturday, and notwithstanding the fact that the game was won by the visitors, it was not the walkway that they had been figuring on. Oshkosh has one man that is said to weigh 216 pounds, and whether this is his exact weight or not, it is certain that he is a monstrous pile of flesh compared to the average high school boy, and while his play was good at all brilliant, he was a pretty good fellow to have in the line, and was depended upon quite a lot when the play came to a critical point.

It was expected by the home boys and the spectators as well, that it would be a complete walkaway when the relative size of the two teams was seen, but after a few minutes' play, it was soon that our boys were really outplaying the visitors at every point, and were in fact keeping them busy to prevent them from scoring. Then everybody took a brace and the locals played like tigers and made every effort to score. Luck seemed to be a trifle against them, however, and they were unable to do anything. The visitors were so busy defending their own goal in the first half that they had little time to think about making anything, and the result was that this part of it ended without a point on either side.

In the third quarter things were moving along with pretty even scores, the visitors playing a trifle stronger game than they did in the first part, when the Oshkosh boys tried a forward pass, and made it, the ball being carried behind the goal without an effort. Goal was scored and the score stood 5 to 0. The local team was a bit disheartened by the outcome of their efforts after having put up such a brilliant game all the way thru, and while they stuck to it with dogged determination, it was evident that the visitors were playing more in our territory than they had in the first part of the game, and the result was that they got another touchdown and kicked a goal, making the score 11 to 0.

While the locals were beaten, they have nothing to feel ashamed of. In fact they received a whole lot of praise for the gallant manner in which they defended their honors against what is conceded to be one of the strongest high school teams in the state.

HISTORY OF THE JOHN DIETZ CASE.

The Dietz case arose over the disputed ownership of a logging claim on the Thompson River in the Southwestern part of Sawyer County. This claim was built in 1877 by the Daniel Shaw Lumber Company of Janesville, Wis. and was sold to the Chicago Lumber and Coal Company in 1907. Specialarrants were issued following its use. John Dietz, owner of the land on the north side of the claim and a claimant deed, while the Company claimed that the use of the claim was reserved in the sale to Dietz's father in title.

Dietz, a determined man, demanded $15,000 of the Lumber Company before they could use the claim for logging purposes. He claimed that amount as a toll for all the logs that had gone through the claim during the time he owned the land.

The Company, in order to prevent their drive being stopped, secured an injunction from Sawyer County Circuit Court restraining Dietz from interfering in its use. This injunction order was served on Dietz in Sheriff Peterson's April 25, 1907, and then Dietz said he would not obey it. On May 2nd of the same year, a bench warrant was issued for his arrest for violating the order and Sheriff Peterson and Deputy Sheriff Clark started out to make the arrest. Clark was able to see Dietz and inform him of the nature of his arrest but was unable to make the arrest as Dietz's wife, two boys and a daughter held guns on him all the time while he was talking to Dietz.

On this information the court ordered the sheriff to summon a posse. Ex-sheriff Giffin and Wm. Elliot volunteered and endeavored to effect the arrest of Dietz. From Hayward they went to the Lebeault farm and from there walked through the woods. On a Sunday morning Giffin, Elliot and three others started to drive through to the Dietz farm with a four horse team and when within a mile and a half from the claim, Dietz with face and hands blackened like a negro, stepped out from behind a tree near the road and commenced firing at the wagon. One bullet passed thru the hat of Edward Grogg, grazing his skull. He was stunned momentarily and fell out of the wagon. Dietz and his ally, Wasebach, started Grogg back with their guns pointed in the small of his back. Pat Maglin, also in the wagon, received a flesh wound in the arm. Deputies Giffin and Elliot spent the night in a camp 10 miles from Dietz's farm. While eating dinner in a camp close to Dietz farm Dietz fired shots through the window of the camp and struck a man by the name of Tracy in the arm, shattering the bone. Another shot fired at Wm. Trimble which grazed his throat, going so close it burned the flesh.

On July 25, 1906, Sheriff Gylland with six Milwaukee men had a battle with the Dietz family. John Roglich, member of posse and Clarence Dietz were injured.

In an altercation between John Dietz and O'Hare at Winter recently relative to school affairs Bert Horrel attempted to keep Dietz from entering into a battle encounter with O'Hare, the consequence of which Horrel was shot by Dietz in the neck, the bullet entering the shoulder shattering the bone. Horrel is slowly recovering.

Reception for the Pastor.

A reception was held in the Methodist church parlors on Friday evening in honor of the new pastor, Rev. F. A. Peace and family. The church parlors were well filled with members and friends of the church, and the evening was a most delightful one.

He was followed by Rev. Mulliken, who spoke on behalf of the ministers of Grand Rapids, extending to Mr. Peace and family a hearty welcome. GRAND RAPIDS, WIS.

HAD THEM BOTH "STUMPED"

Customer and Dealer Still Awaiting Reply to Question: "What Is a Seed?"

A certain gentleman who has not been in Pittsburgh long, but who is rapidly acquiring the stogie habit, entered a cigar store to purchase a supply of the elongated whiffs. In the course of his selection he noted that many different boxes were designated "seed" cigars. It couldn't be merely a title, he mused, for there were "seed" cigars made by a dozen different firms. It couldn't refer to a particular form of rolling a stogie, for some "seed" cigars were round, some were thick and some thin. Nor to the color, for some were dark, others light. He decided at last to betray his ignorance by asking the dealer "May I ask," he said, "what are seed cigars?"

"Why right there in those boxes," said the dealer, "there are seed." To that green boy is our own manufacturer's seed cigars. Very good.

"But," said the man, blushing at his confession of ignorance, "what is the meaning of the word 'seed'?" Why do they call it a seed cigar?"

"Well, sir," said the dealer, "I'll tell you. When he pulled out the customer asked: 'What is a seed cigar?' 'It's a seed cigar,' said the dealer. 'You're not a seed?' 'I've been selling seed cigars for years, and you're the first in that city who asked the question. I'll have to take the foreman of our factory some time.'"

"Do you know why it is a 'seed'?"

"It's because," said the dealer, "it's a seed cigar." (Grand Rapids Times)

The Cholera.

Every person can guard against an attack of cholera as against typhoid, from which latter disease there is in this country a hundredfold the danger of infection. He can see that the water he drinks is pure, that the food he eats is uncontaminated. These simple precautions shut off every danger. In addition he observes the rule of moderation in his diet and in the use of alcoholic beverages he is practically immune from any infectious disease.

The people should not depend upon the public authorities to do everything. In guarding against the danger of infection, the cases of cholera and healthy cholera "carriers" are happily very rare. The importation of germs of the disease upon goods and clothing from infected countries is guarded against. The sanitary conditions in all American cities, and notably in big cities, are such that it is extremely unlikely that cholera could become epidemic even if it gained a slight foothold here. But each individual can make infection in his case impossible.

Where His Faith Lay.

A man was talking copper cents out of a gossamer-correct weight and get-your-money-back machine the other day, when a woman came along and addressed him.

"It's a joy to see you teaching cynicism a lesson in faith," she said.

"How is that?" asked the weighing machine man.

"Why you put up your machine right next to another where it only costs a cent to get weighed. How easy it would be to get on that machine first, then climb on yours and bet on a sure thing! What faith you must have in human nature!"

"I ain't got no faith in human nature, lady," said the man, "but I've got all kinds of faith in this here machine."

Bright Chicago.

"I try, by means of these circulars," said Doctor Evans, "to get the public's attention. In the majority of cases I succeed, too. Chicago is a bright town, and there is not a single Chicagoan of whom you could not appropriately say:

"You may lead an ass to know edge, but you can't make him think."

Flower of the Falls.

Growing in the spray of the great Victoria falls in South Africa, a new gladiolus has been discovered and named the Maid of the Mist.

"Well, he's too old for football, of course. He might possibly get on the mandarin club."

TOTAL SWELLED BY BUMPER YIELD OF CORN AND OATS.

WHEAT CROP ALSO IS BIG

Two Former Cereals Break the Record, While Latter Turns Out to Be Only 45,000,000 Bushels Under 1909 Fat Hogs in Prospect.

Corn, total yield, 2,575,000,000 bu.
Oats, total yield, 1,000,000,000 bu.
Wheat, total yield, 632,000,000 bu.
Barley, total yield, 159,000,000 bu.
Potatoes, total yield, 372,000,000 bu.
Grand total, 4,638,000,000 bu.

Washington. Official figures issued by the department of agriculture show that corn and oats are bumper crops, the former having three billion bushels and the latter exceeding last year's bumper crop by nearly 100,000,000 bushels. Even the wheat crop turns out to be only 15,000,000 bushels below the big yield of 1909 and has been exceeded but four times in the nation's history.

The great states of the Mississippi Valley have pulled out fatness gauges, breaking the record for bumper crops of corn and oats, and sending the country far beyond its usual limits. While the statistics show that the corn yield is a trifle below the 1909, 2,575,000,000 bushels mark, this report was made up only to October 1. Since that date, even the statistics of the 1910 corn crop have come under the safety line. The November report will take into these and will also tell the country that many millions of bushels of the crop of 1909 will still be on hand. The old corn will butter the jaws of the entire family that were not in evidence previous to last spring and summer.

The present corn crop is 255,000,000 bushels larger than that of last year and is over 50,000,000 bushels larger than the previous bumper crop of that of 1906, which was 2,527,000,000 bushels. The states south of the Ohio river and the Missouri and Kansas rivers have raised more than a round billion of bushels of corn, something heretofore unheard of. The south will have long and healthy in prospect, and a good bunch of corn for export.

But last year a crop of a billion bushels of oats in America was unknown. This year there is a good, healthy start on the second billion, the official preliminary estimate for 1910 making the yield 1,000,000,000 bushels. In addition to being the largest crop of oats ever grown, the quality is exceptionally fine and the weight per bushel is among the heaviest ever recorded. There is plenty of feed for all of the animals in need of the grain in this country, in addition to large quantities available for export—providing the producer here is willing to get into competition with the world's markets.

The production of spring wheat, as estimated by the crop reporting board for 1910, was 233,175,000 bushels.

SUPREME TRIBUNAL ENTERS UPON IMPORTANT TERM.

Tobacco Trust, Standard Oil Corporation Tax, and Other Cases of Great Significance.

Washington. —Owing to the illness and deaths of the members of the United States supreme court during the past two years that august body, when it reassembled Monday, found the docket piled high with important cases which presaged a busy and important session.

Although the tobacco trust, Standard Oil, railroad and the corporation tax cases are regarded as the most important ones now before the Supreme bench, there are a number of other cases of considerable national significance. One of the latter is the original act of the state of Virginia against its next door neighbor, West Virginia, in which several million dollars are involved as a result of the division of Virginia in its original state. The suit consists of an attempt to compel West Virginia to shoulder part of the debt that existed in Virginia at the time of the division. There are two pension cases appealed by the state of Florida; the appeal of a number of railroads in the western territory in the suit brought by them against the railroad commission of Missouri; three criminal cases brought by the United States on account of alleged violations of the pure food and drug act; the appeal of the United States from the United States circuit court for eastern Missouri in its suit against the West in Terminal Association of St. Louis, which is known as the Eads bridge monopoly case, and the suit of the United States against the Press Publishing company of New York which grew out of articles printed in the New York World about Theodore Roosevelt, who was then president; William Nelson Cromwell and others in connection with the sale of the Panama canal. The docket contains also a corresponding case against the Indianapolis News.

The tobacco trust and Standard Oil cases are to be argued and the clerk of the court has placed them on the docket for November without any definite date. In each of these cases the government has assumed the role of "trust buster," because of its attempt to dissolve what is known as a trust operating in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

SEVEN TOWNS OFF THE MAP

Fifty Miles of the Rainy Lake Country a Mass of Fire—Martial Law for the Stricken District—Whole Families Are Destroyed.

Chicago. —The senatorial subcommittee which is investigating the election of United States Senator Lorimer concluded its three weeks' session in Chicago without hearing arguments.

Before the report on Mr. Lorimer's right to his seat is presented to the full committee on privileges and elections, by which the seven investigators were delegated, there is the prospect of further sittings at Washington preceding the convening of congress next December. Moreover, it is possible that additional testimony will be heard.

This will depend in part upon whether Representative Robert E. Wilson, now in hiding, is found by the deputy United States marshal, who has been hunting for him to serve him with a subpoena.

Chairman Burrows made plain that he was regarded as a highly desirable witness, whose absence at this time suggested special reasons for securing his presence and testimony. Speaker Edward D. Shurtliff was slated one of the last witnesses heard. Mr. Shurtliff denied paying or receiving money for "other valuable things" in consideration of voting for Lorimer. Most of his testimony was devoted to apporportioning the house legislators into factional groups.

Up to the last moment there was uncertainty as to whether Senator Lorimer would be a witness, but he did not go on the stand.

GRAND RAPIDS TRIBUNE

GRAND RAPIDS, WIS.

HAD THEM BOTH "STUMPED"

Customer and Dealer Still Awaiting Reply to Question, "What Is a Seed?"

A certain gentleman who has not been in Grand Rapids long, but who is rapidly acquiring the local habit, is a customer of the Tribune. In the course of his selection he noted that many different boxes were designated "seed" stock. It couldn't be merely a title, he mused, for there were "seed" stocks of many different kinds. He couldn't refer to a particular form of rolling a stone, for some "seed" were long, others short; some were thick and some thin. Nor to the color, for some were dark, others light. He decided at last to test his ignorance by asking the dealer, "What are seed stocks?"

"Why right there in those boxes," said the dealer, "these are seeds. In that green box is our own manufactured seed stock. Very good."

"But," said the man, "I am at his conference of farmers, and he is the meaning of the word 'seed'?" Why did they call it a "seed" stock?

"Well, sir," said the dealer, "I'll tell you."

"Then he paused and the customer waited. After fully a minute the dealer burst forth:

"My friend, you've got me. I've been rolling good stories for years and you're the first man that ever asked the question. I'll have to take the fortune of my own story time."

"Do you know why it is a 'seed'?"

"It's a seed," said the dealer.

"The Choleran."

"Every person can guard against an attack of cholera as against typhoid, from which latter disease there is in this country a hundredfold the danger of infection. He can see that the water he drinks is pure, that the food he eats is uncontaminated. These simple precautions shut off every danger. If in addition he observes the rule of moderation in his diet and in the use of alcoholic beverages he is practically immune from any infectious disease."

"The people should not depend upon the public authorities to do everything in guarding against threatened infection. The cases of cholera and typhoid are very few, but they are very deadly. The importation of germs of the disease upon goods and clothing from infected countries is guarded against. The sanitary conditions in all American cities, and notably in the big cities, are such that it is extremely unlikely that cholera will become epidemic even if it gained a slight foothold here. But each individual can make infection in his case impossible."

"Where His Faith Lay."

A man was taking copper cents out of a guano-vanilla-cocoa-walrus-fat-your-money-back machine. The other day, when a woman came along and addressed him.

"It's a joy to see you teaching cynicism a lesson in faith," she said.

"How is that?" asked the weeping machine man.

"Why, you put out your machine right in front of where it only costs a cent to get weighed. How easy it would be to get on that machine first, then climb on years and let on a sure thing? What faith you must have in human nature!"

"Bright Chicago."

Dr. W. E. Evans, Chicago's original and efficient health commissioner, was discussing his health circulars—striking papers that are studied with great interest by the people of the city.

"I try, by means of these circulars," said Doctor Evans, "to get the public's attention. In the majority of cases I succeed. But Chicago is a bright town, and there is not a single Chicagoan of whom you could appropriately say:

"You may lead an ass to knowledge, but you can't make him think."

"Flower of the Falls."

Growing in the spray of the great Victoria falls in South Africa, a new gladiolus has been discovered and named the "Maid of the Mist."

Four bulbs of the plant, sent to England, have been induced to sprout and bloom by virtue of constant spraying in a hothouse. There the interesting discovery was made that the petals of the flower were so arranged as to form a penthouse to protect the stamens and pistils from the wetness of the spray which they would otherwise be subjected in the native "hearts of the plant."

"Pointed."

The Chappie—Yes, although it is "blooming" monotonously, it turns in every night at nine o'clock sharp, with Miss Tobacco—How do you manage it?

The Chappie—Maude what?

Miss Tobacco—Why, to turn to sharp, after being so dull.

Nothing So Frivolous.

"It took quite a using up of gray matter for Bangs to discover that Jinks had called him a blasted liar."

Madge—I heard you were at a summer resort up in Maine. Which one was it?

Marjorie—Gracious! I wasn't there long enough to learn how to pronounce the name.

Barbara—Has just had a few words of protective coloring?—Daddy, I know why a giraffe is all over spots.

"Can a man do any good at college at fifty?"

"Well, he's too old for football, of course. He might possibly get on the mandolin club."

GREAT GRAIN CROP

TOTAL SWELLED BY BUMPER YIELD OF CORN AND OATS.

WHEAT CROP ALSO IS BIG

Two Former Cereals Break the Record, While Late Turns Out to Be Only 45,000,000 Bushels Under 1909 Fat Legs in Prospect.

Corn, total yield, 2,578,000,000 bu.
Oats, total yield, 1,095,000,000 bu.
Wheat, total yield, 622,000,000 bu.
Barley, total yield, 138,000,000 bu.
Potatoes, total yield, 352,000,000 bu.
Grand total, 5,275,000,000 bu.

Washington.—Official figures issued by the crop reporting board of the department of agriculture show that corn and oats are bumper crops, the former having three billion bushels and the latter exceeding last year's billion-bushel crop by nearly 100,000,000 bushels. Even the wheat crop, which is behind the big yield of 1909 and has been exceeded but four times in the nation's history.

The great states of the Mississippi Valley have rolled out fatness galore, breaking the record for average yield of corn and promising the country a bumper crop without limit. While the tabulated figures show that the corn yield is a little below the 3,000,000,000 bushel mark, this report was made up only to October 1. Since that date even the stragglers of the 1910 crop have come under the tally stick. The November report will also tell the note of the crop of 1909 are still on hand. This old corn will fatten the juveniles of the swine family that were not in evidence previous to last spring and summer.

The present corn crop is 295,000,000 bushels larger than that of last year and is over 50,000,000 bushels larger than the previous bumper crop that of 1906—which was 2,927,000,000 bushels.

The states south of the Ohio river and the Missouri and Kansas lines have raised more than a round billion of bushels of corn, something heretofore unheard of. The south will have a bumper crop of corn, and a good one for export.

Until last year a crop of a billion bushels of oats in America was unknown. This year there is a good, healthy start on the second billion, the official preliminary estimate for 1910 making the yield 1,095,000,000 bushels. In addition to being the largest crop ever grown in the large east crop is exceptionally fine and the weight per bushel is among the heaviest ever recorded. There is plenty of feed for all of the animals in need of the grain in this country. In addition to large quantities available for export—providing the producer here is willing to get into competition with the world's markets.

The production of spring wheat, as estimated by the crop reporting board for 1910, was 233,475,000 bushels.

COURT HAS A BIG DOCKET

SUPREME TRIBUNAL ENTERS UPON IMPORTANT TERM.

Tobacco Trust, Standard Oil Corporation Tax, and Other Cases of Great Significance.

Washington.—Owing to the illness and deaths of the members of the United States supreme court during the past two years that august body, when it reassembled Monday, found the docket piled high with important cases which presaged a busy and important session.

Although the tobacco trust, Standard Oil, railroad and the corporation tax cases are regarded as the most important ones now before the Supreme court, there are a number of other cases of considerable significance. One of the latter is the original act of the state of Virginia against its next-door neighbor, West Virginia, in which several million dollars are involved as a result of the division of Virginia in its original state. The suit consists of an attempt to compel West Virginia to shoulder part of the debt that existed in Virginia at the time of the division. There are two pension cases appealed by the state of Florida; the appeal of a number of railroads in the western territory in the suit brought by them against the railroad commission of Missouri; three criminal cases brought by the United States on pure food and drug act; the appeal of the United States from the United States circuit court for eastern Missouri in its suit against the Western Terminal association of St. Louis, which is known as the Eads bridge monopoly case; and the libel suit of the United States against the Press Publishing company of New York which grew out of articles printed in the New York World about Theodore Roosevelt, who was then president; William Nelson Cromwell and others in connection with the sale of the Panama canal.

The docket contains also a corresponding case against the Indianapolis News.

The tobacco trust and Standard Oil cases are to be reargued and the clerk of the court has placed them on the docket for November without any definite date. In each of these cases the government has assumed the role of "trust buster," because of its attempt to dissolve what it deems a trust in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

FRENCH STRIKERS IN RIOT

Employees on Northern Railroad Cause Wreck and Tie Up Traffic; Soldiers Take Possession.

Paris, France.—Employees of the Northern railroad went on a strike Tuesday and the tie-up is complete. Trains only for Calais and Cologne are moving. At St. Quentin the tracks were torn up. Two locomotives were in collision at Terginer and obstructed the main track. Military forces have taken possession of several stations and have been posted along the road to protect the railroad property.

The strike developed overnight and took the company and the public by surprise. There has been little feeling on the part of the employees for some time owing to the refusal of the Northern railroad to increase the wages of its men to $1 a day and to grant other concessions. There have been rumors of impending strikes, but the men conducted their plans with great secrecy.

PRIMER BRIAND DENOUNCES ACTION OF EMPLOYEES AS "INSURRECTION BUILT".

SEINE TO BE A SAVIOR

Government to Rush Food Supplies to Famishing Paris Down River and Requisition Boats. Americans and Victims.

Paris.—The strike of the railroad men, which threatens to spread throughout France, was denounced by Premier Briand as "an insurrection built upon criminal foundations."

The premier said the strike was called by wild negotiations were going on through himself and the minister of public works for an adjustment of grievances, and he promised that the instigators of the strike would be criminally prosecuted.

The Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean and Orleans railroad men voted to strike, as also did the employees of the Paris subway, who down this a good opportunity to obtain satisfaction on a number of demands for which they have been agitating for some time past.

The River Seine, which in January threatened to destroy Paris, now looms up in the role of savior. The government has made arrangements to rush food supplies to Paris by the sea, requisitioning all tugs, boats and barges to meet the crisis brought about by the strike and the railway service, and page the food market, which is already hard hit.

The employees of the Eastern and the Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean railroads have not yet responded to the call to strike, and the government's weapon of mobilization has induced some of those employed by the Northern road to strike. The Northern and Western railroads are prostrated. The call to the colored majority, and at mass meetings held by the strikers their determination not to respond to the call.

Much destruction has been wrought on the Western system, where the strikers and their supporters have been tearing up the rails, blocking tracks, destroying signals, ripping up rails and cutting telephone and telegraph wires. The government has ordered the arrest of a score of the strike leaders and instructions have been issued to the troops to use severe measures wherever occasion requires.

Thousands of persons living in the suburbs who are employed by the strikers have been ordered to leave their homes and to take refuge in the city. These they found closed and silent, with soldiers' camps in front. They have been ordered to leave their homes and to take refuge in the city.

Many Parisians have been ordered to leave their homes and to take refuge in the city. These they found closed and silent, with soldiers' camps in front. They have been ordered to leave their homes and to take refuge in the city.

The losses to commerce already are tremendous. Scores of trains have been stalled along the roads, many of these carrying food supplies, and the passengers on the steamship Oceanic, who took the train at Cherbourg for Paris, are blocked at Mantes-sur-Seine about thirty-six miles from Paris.

Many Americans have been compelled to remain in this city or to pay fabulous sums to reach the coast. Seven hundred sacks of American mail are being transported from Paris to New York by the French steamship line will employ a tug to convey the passengers for the steamer La Touraine.

John White of the Marshfield News says: "If there was as much interest manifested in taking out marriage licenses as there is in hunting licenses, what a time our young folks would have." Maybe if the boys could take out a new marriage license every fall, same as they do a hunting license, it might stimulate the business a bit.

—A very brief sketch of a common experience is related in this weeks ad of the First National Bank, but the experience is getting less common every year. Only about five years ago the First National started the First Savings Department in this territory, and now the books show several hundred accounts which we are told are steadily growing.

As a man remarked recently: The whole nation rushes to see the Vanderbilt automobile race at which half a dozen people are killed and a score wounded, and it is heralded as a great event, but if two local color-brities want to pull off a prize fight, where one may possibly get a bloody nose and the other a black eye, the police step in and stop the mill.

FOR OCTOBER.

O. T. Roosevelt has come back to the West! Of all the Rough Riders his luck was the best. He rode from Dakota to San Juan Hill. And he found him the Spaniards he wanted to kill.

Shouting, "Into 'em, Teddy. An' into 'em deep! And the men of Granada Went down in a heap.

He rested his broncho and fed him his fill, and then he rode yelling up Capitol Hill. He wasn't expecting or asking a thing, but he landed right in the political ring, shouting "Into 'em, Teddy, and into 'em plump!" and the poor politicians went down in a lump.

He watered his pinto and fed him some oats. And then he remounted and hunted for goats. He found him some people who didn't agree With all of his notions, and gave a whoop-pee.

Yelling, "Into 'em, Teddy. An' into 'em hot!" And he knocked them all into The pitiless bog.

He hobbled his charger and gave him some grass, and then he went after someone in his class. He put up a lion with blood in its eye, and he clapped on the spurs with a terrific cry, saying "Into 'em, Teddy, an' into 'em hard!" and the lion passed on to his final reward.

He breathed his good mustang and looked him around, But further adventure was not to be found. So he pulled up his trousers and pulled down his vest. And slowly rode back to the olden-time West.

Shouting, "Back to 'em, Teddy. An' back to 'em proud!" And they gathered about him And solemnly bowed.

He rode on his saddle, and rode on his head, and he put all the tenderfoot under the hoof. He dashed to the East, and he dashed to the West, and he halted before them, expanding his chest, saying, "Three cheers for Teddy the pride of the West!" and they took a great pleasure in doing the rest.

October is from the Latin octo, meaning eight, and it was formerly the eighth month of the year. This brought the football season around at a time when there was grave danger even put into play, and there was a great deal of dissatisfaction at the old Greek and Roman universities. A change was frequently talked of, but it remained for Numa Pompilius, who was one of the early friends of education, to do any thing about it. In 713 B. C. he moved October along to its present place in the calendar, and now the quarterback on the football team always says before snapping the ball.

Numa, Numa, Come seven, One, three!

After which the routers, who reeled a very high state of proficiency in the latter days of Numa, recite, Numa, Numa, Come seven, One, three, H. C. Whoopie!

or whatever the name of the school is as you may hear them doing any time this month by following the riot wagon when it passes.

Until the 23rd of the month, October will be under the influence of Libra, the balance, which is the seventh sign of the zodiac. This will enable everybody running for office to keep on the fence pretty well as to the real issues of the campaign, but when the sun passes out of that constellation on the following day that they will begin dropping on one side or the other, and it will be easier to make out who the true friends of the people are. After the 22d we will be influenced by Scorpio, the Scorpion, which is almost meaningless now, but in early times typified the manner in which the north wind stung the old Greeks, who were in the habit of going very late in the season without having any wear to speak of, either over or under.

A bit of Fall is a nice thing As I know anything about— When the pumpkin pie is ripening, And the time is opportune for krait. When the hunter gets his trappings out, Awakened by the time of year, And the farmer, furious without, And hot within, begins to shout, "Get ou-u-u-u-t of here!" "Get ou-u-u-u-t of here—dadbame to you!"

Ah, that's the proper time to sigh— When the squirrel get's his goodies in. Against the winter by-and-by. When the bending reaches of the sky Are very soft and very near, And the farmer, with a watchful eye, Begins to hop around and cry, "Get ou-u-u-u-t of here!" "Get ou-u-u-u-t of here—you blanky-blank!"

Ah, that's the season of them all— When winter hangs upon the flank Of the wild goose passing the fall. When the relative dear begins to call Across the golden fields and sere, And the farmer bursting from the tail With leaps and bounds, begins to bawl: "Get ou-u-u-u-t of here!"

The melancholy days will come, and the pheasant will intone his drum upon the sad and drowsy wind in the solemn manner of his kind. The booming frog will swirl the breeze and fall to digging on his knees, and the buck-toothed cat will take a crack at this fool thing of coming back.

It may be Jeffries and his strain are never quite themselves again, out the pickled pig's foot and the rest are always equal to the test. They never dissipate a bit, but spend the summer prize and fit, and let the frost succeed the dew, and they're there, you bet as good as new.

The doughty oyster on his shell, the chitlin looking strong and well, and the clear and resolute eye, the hardy brands of winter pie. The apple butter, juice and flake, the same that mother used to make, and the crackling of our youthful lot the cock and captain of the pot.

The football season will revert, and the center rush will paw the dirt. He'll wake the natives with his roar, and the bawls for victory and glory will mass against his butting head, and he'll spin the planet in his rage just like a squirrel in his cage.

Alas for those who calmly sit devising to denature it, and all the college renegades who think to temper it for maled. The students and the teachers howl, and the routers and the bleachers yowl, and damnd be he who does not rise and kill somebody twice his size. The aeroplanes will cruise the air lucky winner will be he who wins the best two falls in three. The farmer in his limousine will tot around upon the green, and the hired man will seize the chance to wear his other pair of pants. The softer weather will defy The blandishments of June,

And the month will give us by and by The officehunter's moon. A chop will cost four bits a pound, And beef a buck a bite, And the wolf will wear a groove around The cabin every night.

The 434th anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus will be celebrated on the night of the 11th by the seven Guggenheim brothers.

Mr. Roosevelt will be stage manager again this month. The villain will be the Demon Kum. Mr. Bryan will be the father of the stolen child, and Mr. Cannon, who made the password "Hell last month, will change it to read "Hell!

And then November will return With cold and chilly draft, And the wild goose going down the line With Winter biting aft.

Ladies— We have an unusually attractive chance for a bright, energetic woman, well and favorably known in this community. For details address, enclosing stamped self addressed envelope to Manager, Lock Box 750, St. Louis, Mo.

Cranberry Notes.

On the Arpin cranberry marsh about nine hundred barrels of berries were picked this year. Not as much of a crop as they generally get out there and they report that the quality is not as good as is often the case.

They now have a gang at work grading and it will not be very long before the entire output is ready to ship, in case it is desirable to do so. The Cranberry Sales company held a meeting in this city last Wednesday afternoon, there being a good attendance of the members. A. U. Chaney, who acts as manager of the company, was in attendance and gave the members a good idea of the conditions as they exist in the outside markets. Berries are selling rather low this season, owing to the fact that the New Jersey growers have been dumping their crop onto the market regardless of prices, and a large amount of berries coming so early in the season at a time when the demand is normally light, had a tendency to bring the price even lower than it would have been.

Wisconsin and Cape Cod growers are pretty generally holding their crops, being confident that the present conditions will not continue for any length of time.

—K. N. A. will give a chicken supper Thursday, Oct. 20, at the Forester hall.—2t.

A mechanic in a neighboring city was earning a good salary but saved none of it. Suddenly the factory closed and left him without employment. Through a friend he secured a position 150 miles away, but he hadn't the money to take him there. MILAN.

July 20.

By M. H. Jackson.

You told me to "hit the high places" and here I am in the "lantern" of the "Eighth Wonder of the World," as the people of Milan call it. It took five hundred steps to get up here and I am under the necessity of taking another five hundred in making the descent.

This cathedral is doubtless the most beautiful one in the world. Ornamentation has reached its climax here. Think of one building decorated with thirty thousand statues and bas-reliefs, all being the work of the most celebrated sculptors of their time. Think, too, of a building large enough to accommodate forty thousand people, for the Cathedral at Milan is the third largest in Europe. When we get to Rome I will tell you about the largest one.

We have just finished our visit to the interior, and I assure you, it would take a very vivid imagination to make an adequate mental picture of it without coming here.

But I am the only one of our party up here so high. The others are on the roof below, and I must go down to rejoin them for we have other plans for the forenoon, and we must all go down to our taxicabs which are waiting for us.

Milan is an up-to-date Italian city. I am surprised to see so many fine buildings. There is here a general appearance of thrift. I am changing my mind somewhat regarding the Italian people. One should come to Italy to know them. Those who come to us in America as a rule hardly representative of the people of Italy.

Milan is in the rich plain of Lombardy. All along our route we can see mulberry trees and grape vineyards. Italy, you know, is noted for its production of silks and wines and Northern Italy is very rich in its soil productions. The people of Milan think there is no city in the world like this one.

Venice, July 23.

It is 11 o'clock at night, and I have just returned from a ride in one of the gondolas for which Venice is famous. The full moon is now nearly two hours high and the Grand Canal is swarming with boats. As I write, the song of the gondolier is wafted over to us from the "big street of Venice,"—the Grand Canal. It has been a hot day and tonight the "Doom City" is exactly as I have pictured it so often in imagination as I have read about it or have heard descriptions given by those who have been here.

We do not have to dodge street vehicles here. Our automobiles are gasoline launches, our street cars are pretty little steamboats, our carriages are the graceful tandems with their happy drivers standing on the back's stern with long oar,—the most skillful boatmen in the world. There is not a horse in all Venice.

Yes there are four brace horses in Venice and they are so old and have traveled so far that I must tell you about them. These four large horses, now over the doors of the main entrance to St. Mark's Cathedral once stood on Nero's arch of triumph at Rome. They afterward were sent to Constantinople by Constantine. Later they came to Venice, and when Napoleon captured this city he actually sent them to Paris. But they were not there long. The Venetians were very glad to get them back again. From what I have told you, you may find out how very old these horses are and also how far they have traveled. People who have visited many cities agree that there is no place like Venice. We were told that there is malaria in the water. What was our surprise to find on our tables and in our rooms, clear, pure spring water piped in from the foot hills forty miles away. We are told that "Venice is the city of the future." To be sure there are places in Venice along the five-foot streets and narrow canals where the old are not agreeable, but classic Boston has such streets, and Chicago can discount Venice in some of her neglected districts.

Venice is built on a group of continental islands. The Grand Canal runs in curves through the large island which is the center of the commercial life of the city. From this main canal, numerous branches lead off to all parts of the island, so that all trucking and pleasure riding are by boat. The regular rising and falling of the water during the ebb and flow of the tides takes care of the cleansing of the city.

You must know quality and reasonable prices of goods before buying extensively here. There is not a one price establishment in Venice, although many of them claim to be. I purchased an article today for four lire that was marked nine and I have no fear that the dealer made any sacrifice, although he insisted that it was below cost. It is necessary to "drive the bargain" with every purchase. The dealer will often say, "How much will you give?" Many of the best stores now are improving rapidly in this respect, and all cut prices are made with a confidential, "seeing it is you," attitude.

Our first visit to the city is of course to the St. Mark's Cathedral and the great square in front. I wish I could tell you about it, but your encyclopedia will do that. In the great piazza are thousands of pigeons being fed by tourists and Venetians.

These birds are very tame and will sit on your arm and eat from the hand. Corn is sold at a small stand on the square, and everybody feeds the doves. These birds used to be fed at public expense, but now they must depend on charity, and I assure you they do not suffer. Nor are they at all backward in their begging. In this respect they are even more persistent than are the human Italian "solicitors" who used to infest Venice, but who are now disappearing as the city becomes more prosperous.

For Venice after centuries of having been the center of the most brilliant commercial experiences known in history is again coming forward in a business way, and we are hoping for better times for the "Queen of the Adriatic."

Next we saw the palaces of the Doges, the nobles, the churches and other storehouses of art. Then we saw a part of the canals which put together would reach seven miles. We go under, and then disembark and go over the Rialto, but poor old Shylock and the Venetian merchant are of course gone. The Bridge of Sighs and those terrible dungeons are visited, and the palaces along the Grand Canal. The Wagner house and the old Robert Browning residence interest us greatly of course, while the canals themselves with their three hundred seventy-eight bridges, only three of which are of iron, are a never ending delight. These arched stone bridges are familiar to all of you as you have seen them in Venetian pictures.

This is the city that Ruskin loved. Here Ruskin wrote of the beauties of Venetian art. The Venetian artists were masters of color, and why should they not be here, where the gorgeous sunsets and bright Italian sunshines gave them the color sense as few places could do. Then, too, these people in their palmy days, traded with the East, and the coloring of materials purchased there had the tendency to still further heighten their appreciation of color in the art of painting, mosaic and weaving.

It does not seem possible that our stay here is nearly over. The time has passed so rapidly that we are surprised when the order is given to begin breaking camp for our descent upon Florence on the other side of the Apennines. We shall stay seven days in Florence and then nine days in Rome, but I am sure that coming days including Naples and Pompeii, will never seriously dim the memories of Venice which we shall carry away with us.

MILAN.
July 20.
By M. H. Jackson.

You told me to "hit the high places" and here I am in the "Interni" of the "Eighth Wonder of the World," as the people of Milan call it. It took five hundred steps to get up here and I am under the necessity of taking another five hundred in making the descent.

This cathedral is doubtless the most beautiful one in the world. Ornamentation has reached its climax here. Think of one building decorated with thirty thousand statues and bas-reliefs, all being the works of the most celebrated sculptors of their time.
